

The Ungrumblies

Also by Pat Weaver and Jess Bugg:

Positively Bleeker Street
The Borough of Blackwell

The Ungrumblies
an alphabet of allergies

by

Pat Weaver
and
Jess Bugg

PHONE BOOTH PRESS

The Ungrumblies
Copyright ©2013 by Pat Weaver and Jess Bugg
All rights reserved.

All rights reserved. Printed in New York City.

phoneboothpress.com

FIRST PRINTING

April 2013

Thanks to Ray Flynt, Captain, Bones, Jay and Cathy Bugg, Marina
Hendrix, Naomi Solomon, Carolyn Epstein, Charles Mullen, Brendan Byrne, Jennette Cheung, Tommy Chisholm, Jessica Polaniecki, Julia Fredenburg, Jamie Burkart, Matt Nelson, Rosie
Wilson Briggs, Martin Hanson, Zach Williams, Lesley Wynn, Maggie Muldoon, Brian Muldoon, bookbook, Mellow Pages
Library, and everyone whose name we used.

A is for Alan who was allergic to artichokes.

B is for Bonnie who fainted smelling bananas.

C is for Carolyn who couldn't hold down chocolate.

D is for Danny for whom donuts
were deadly.

E is for Edith whose stomach
ached from an egg cream.

F is for Frank who could not eat a fig.

G is for George who would feel very ill when his mother
fed him goulash.

H is for Henrietta who had a hypersensitivity to horchata.

I is for Ida and Ira
who felt itchy inside
after eating ice cream.

J is for Jess who was allergic
to just about everything.

K is for Ken whose stomach would ache just looking at kale on the plate.

L is for Levon who got lightheaded eating lemon lollipops.

M is for Mariah who collapsed
munching meatballs.

N is for Neptune who felt nausea from noodles.

O is for Ophelia whose tummy
would quiver whenever an oyster
was part of her dinner.

P is for Patrick who got chills chewing peanuts.

Q is for Quentin who felt queasy from quinoa.

R is for Ray who turned red from a radish.

S is for Suze who got sick sipping soda.

T is for Thomas whose tongue would feel numb, when he ate the smallest turkey crumb.

U is for Uta who was upside-down cake intolerant.

V is for Veronica who caught
the vapors from vinegar.

A large, ripe watermelon is the central focus, with its green vine and large, deeply lobed leaves extending towards the left. Two small bowls of watermelon rind sit on the ground near the base of the plant. A small piece of watermelon is on the ground to the right. A young boy in a red cap and blue shirt stands to the right of the watermelon, looking towards it.

W is for Wilbur who felt indisposed when eating watermelon.

X is for Xavier who couldn't stomach xanthan gum.

Y is for Yanik who got woozy from yams.

Z is for Zoe who was allergic to zilch.

THE END

PAT

JESS

Pat Weaver and Jess Bugg live in Brooklyn and Austin. They are the co-authors and illustrators of Positively Bleecker Street and The Borough of Blackwell, which are occasionally also available from Phone Booth Press, and The New Words, coming soon from Phone Booth Press!

They still just want to be on the side that's winning.

